Completed	In its 2024 report, the FWG highlighted language barriers, extending beyond translation challenges, in communicating the values, worldviews, and knowledge of Indigenous Peoples, and local knowledge systems. The FWG pointed out that an over-reliance on dominant languages such as English can inadvertently simplify complex ecological knowledge and cultural values. Such oversimplification often reduces nuanced Indigenous terminologies to basic English equivalents, diluting the depth and richness of the knowledge and wisdom being conveyed. This dilution not only affects the comprehension of climate impacts on ecosystems and livelihoods but also risks losing vital concepts and terminologies intrinsic to the values and worldviews of Indigenous Peoples and local communities. The FWG has adopted a variety of modalities for exchanging information, knowledge, and experience. These include small group discussions during meetings,

	LCIPP regional gatherings, and intersessional informal contributors' briefings. Furthermore, the FWG has incorporated photos and music into its meetings, and Indigenous innovations to open and close LCIPP events, using diverse communication channels and formats to strengthen the understanding and application of diverse worldviews and knowledge systems in addressing climate change. The FWG has also promoted LCIPP at the national and regional levels through its engagements in national and/or regional events and in relevant climate-related processes under and outside the Convention. Regular Contributors Briefings have been conducted ahead of SB and COP sessions since 2022.

LCIPP dedicated web portal

In line with decision 2/CP.24, paragraph 21, the secretariat with the support of the FWG developed a dedicated LCIPP web portal. It offers a platform for Indigenous Peoples, local communities, Parties, and other relevant entities to share and promote their efforts to address climate change.

Indigenous Peoples can connect with their regionally nominated representative through the portal's regional pages. These pages also provide Indigenous Peoples organizations a platform to exchange and showcase their work. Similarly, the portal also provides updated information about the Party representatives from the five UN regional groups.

During its 6th meeting, the FWG decided to have a standing agenda item in its future meetings to regularly address updates on new portal content and address any knowledge safeguard concerns.

Under this agenda item, the FWG will present the LCIPP workplan for 2025-2027 and engage the active participation of LCIPP contributors to discuss and plan for the timely initiation of the workplan implementation in 2025.

Actions:

- The FWG will engage LCIPP contributors through small group discussions to explore:
 - Areas of improvement for implementing the LCIPP workplan, based on lessons learned.
 - Ways to incorporate the outputs from the current workplan into the development and implementation of activities under the LCIPP workplan for 2025-2027.
 - Possible themes for the year 2025, reflecting the mandates and vision of the FWG, as well as important timelines and milestones under and outside the Convention

7. Coordination of FWG Engagements at SB 61 and COP 29

- a. Enriching the UNFCCC Process with the Diverse Experiences and Expertise of Indigenous Peoples and Local Communities

The COP and CMA recognize the crucial role of the values, worldviews, and knowledge of Indigenous Peoples, as well as local knowledge systems in transformative climate action, as outlined in decisions such as 1/CP.26, 1/CMA.3, and 2/CMA.5. Both bodies have consistently urged Parties to involve Indigenous Peoples and local communities in designing and implementing climate actions.

To enhance the engagement of Indigenous Peoples and local communities in the UNFCCC process, the FWG not only participates but also facilitates their participation in relevant meetings and forums during the sessions of the SB and COP. Under this agenda item, the FWG will review and coordinate its engagements at SB 61 and COP 29.

8. Any Other Matters

The FWG will address any other matters, related to its role in facilitating the implementation of the LCIPP's three functions—knowledge, capacity for engagement, and climate policies and actions, including regional developments and workshops such as the Indigenous decision-making workshop held in the Pacific.

Action: The FWG addresses any other matters, as needed.

9. Closing of the meeting

- a. Dates for FWG 13 (in conjunction with SB62) – and the start of the new FWG cohort
COP 24 decided that the FWG will meet twice per year in conjunction with the sessions of the subsidiary bodies and the session of the COP, per decision 2/CP.24.

Action: The FWG decides on the dates of its 13th meeting in conjunction with SB 62.

- b. Decision points for FWG 12

The FWG Co-Chairs, with the secretariat's support, present a draft FWG 12 Co-Chairs summary. These decision points will be shared with the FWG members in advance for their consideration.

Action: The FWG considers the draft decision points from its 12th meeting and adopts the decisions as presented or revisions with proposed changes based on consensus.

10. Closing remarks

- FWG Co-Chairs (TBC)
- TBC

Closing Indigenous Invocation (TBD):

A representative or representatives of Indigenous Peoples will close the 12th meeting of the FWG with an Indigenous invocation. By concluding the proceedings in a good way, the FWG strives to carry forward the positive and collaborative spirit, insights, and messages from its meeting, enriching the wider process at COP 29 and contributing to the collective effort to address climate change.

DRAFT

Annex I: Strategic agenda design and additional participatory and innovative approaches, such as a poster/gallery format and enhanced intervention opportunities

Gunn-Britt:

- I) Maybe we could have a poster showing the key findings from the Arctic Regional Gathering
- II) I know the Arctic Council is focusing on their wildfire initiative, we could encourage them to have a poster on that
- III) The Saami Council will probably have a session at the Nordic Pavilion on our Climate Impacts on Terrestrial Ecosystems (CITE), we could have a poster on that.
- IV) As we develop the mechanism of annual focus, this focus could inspire the following FWG meeting before COP poster session as well.
- V) And now as I got carried away and inspired from the Wim ExCom meeting here in Bonn today: maybe the FWG should consider if it would be valuable to develop joint products with the Wim ExCom/Santiago Network /Adaptation Committee. Wim ExCom engages experts to produce technical guides on various themes. The potential for input on Indigenous Peoples issues is somewhat random. We could strive for a joint technical guide from an Indigenous Peoples' perspective, related to loss and damage etc.

FWG 11 agreed to further explore strategic agenda design and additional participatory and innovative approaches, such as a poster/gallery format and enhanced intervention opportunities, to promote interregional and intergenerational exchanges and awareness raising, with a view to ensuring FWG meetings advance the FWG's mandate and are relevant to LCIPP contributors.

At the FWG intersessional meeting held on August 15, members agreed to provide input through an online document by August 30.

Annex II: A SUCCESSFUL FWG 12

The 12th meeting of the Facilitative Working Group (FWG) of the Local Communities and Indigenous Peoples Platform (LCIPP) marks the significant completion of the 2022-2024 LCIPP workplan.

For the FWG to be deemed successful, it would achieve the following outcomes:

1. Reflection on the 2022-2024 LCIPP Workplan: Celebrate the key achievements in the last three years and identify the changes/impacts made by Indigenous Peoples and local communities in the international climate change arena. Discuss (additional) challenges faced and (further) develop recommendations for the next FWG cohort
2. Initiating the idea generation for 2025-2027 LCIPP Workplan: Develop a strategy to commence implementing the 2025-2027 workplan, ensuring the effective participation of incoming FWG members and the meaningful engagement of Indigenous Peoples and local communities across all relevant workstreams.
3. Strategy for COP 29 Engagement: Formulate a strategy to ensure extensive and inclusive participation at the 29th session of the Conference of the Parties (COP 29), promoting, among others, the importance of Indigenous knowledge and practices within the climate discourse and the integration of these perspectives in broader climate policy and action.

By achieving these outcomes, the FWG will not only successfully conclude the current workplan but also lay a robust foundation for the upcoming cycle, ensuring continuous and enhanced support for Indigenous Peoples and local communities in the global climate arena.
